A Handmade Mother-Daughter Watercolor Kids Graphic Novel Makes a Splash for Ocean Conservation, the Perfect Antidote to the Age of AI

Longmont, Colorado – June 7, 2024 – Creatively Free Studios is excited to announce the release of "Kora Kelly and the Life Keeper," the captivating first book in the Glimmer Series. This enchanting hand-crafted watercolor graphic novel follows Kora Kelly, a small yet mighty underwater creature called a Lumin, on an epic quest to restore the balance between the ocean and the human worlds, with a strong focus on ocean conservation.

In "Kora Kelly and the Life Keeper," young children readers are introduced to the magical world of Lumins, who once brought shimmering sea glass treasures to human shores, bridging the gap between two worlds. However, when Sarwen, an angry crab, disrupts this harmony due to the pollution caused by humans, Kora must embark on a daring mission to save both realms. Along the way, she encounters a host of adorable and fearsome underwater creatures, making new friends and facing formidable foes.

"We're incredibly excited to share Kora's story with readers of all ages," said Ariel Grace Snapp, Angelo D' Amore Publishing from Creatively Free Studios. "This graphic novel not only offers an engaging and adventurous tale but also highlights the critical issue of ocean conservation. We hope Kora's journey will inspire readers to appreciate the beauty of the ocean and understand the importance of protecting it."

In the age of digital everything and AI taking over, the author and illustrator decided it was important to slow down and create something with her hands.
